Subject: Conuma - What a day!

Norm,

Went over with Ann yesterday and had an amazing day with both the fishing and the wild life out on display.

It was like teddy bears picnic at times 5 of them wandering around very very close - one came so close when I had a fishing on I thought he was going to jump in after it.

I had 8 Chinook and broke off on several more, lost loads of fly's but what an experience for a newbie at this place. My 9ft 9 wt was well and truly tested and I having snapped off several times on 16.5lb Orvis Flouro I am not using that shite anymore as a fellow UK angler I bumped into took pity and gave me half a spool of Seaguar. What a Gent he was. Saw a good few very good sized cut throat I guess staging for the eggs. I was also given some info that the Elk River is holding some good sized cutty's circa 20inchers right now. Lots more water in the systems over there now albeit not that much now the spate has run off some of the chinook are pretty fresh and a few Coho showing. Hopefully not to many anglers will venture that way as it will be like a holiday camp combat fishing as not many places to find them. I will go back over again Monday after the weekend. Makes for a long day after the driving etc.

Now I have to clean the bloody car again but hey it was worth it.

Catch you later
