Just back from a couple of days on the CR/Quinsam. Sad times.

Last year at this time several thousand pinks in Q system, this year a couple of hundred! Fished the Campbell, same story!

Managed a couple of dozen fish but most fishers not getting much. Can wade across the Campbell by the power House, as several folks did. No etiquette what so ever! Not impressed with some anglers.

Talked with a DFO biologist who suggested Russia/Japan cranking out millions of hatchery fish into the Pacific, so too much competition for feed, combined with warm ocean temps = less fish but larger survivors? Interesting times! Tight lines
