

Fishout Green Lake March 21

Bruce Murray [drbm@shaw.ca]

It was ugly at 0700hr, when the hard rains came; fishers were bailing except for Bill Croft so I gathered the necessary courage and met Bill at 0900 hr at Green Lake.

Bill was unloading his home built hybrid wheel barrow boat when I arrived.

Designed with a wheel in the bow, it was easy to roll out of the trunk to the water for one person.

So slick and easy, Bill rolled that wheel barrow out of his trunk, down to the water, placed the wheel barrow arms in his oar locks and was on the water fishing while I watched. What a painless way to go fishing. I think Bill said he leisurely built four of these hybrids. Still has the mold if anyone is interested in building one.

OK, now it was my turn to unload the water master, quickly blow it up with the super charged electric pump operating off truck battery, suit up and voila was all set to paddle out on the water.... Meanwhile, Bill had made one circuit across the lake and returned with two nice rainbow (caught on a white professor) that he had caught while I was loading... Bill caught another also on the white professor before heading out at noon.

This 14 incher was perfect for a late breakfast. Note what a great day it turned out to be on the water. It was this calm for the rest of the day with one vicious squall around 1100hr that lasted under 10 minutes tops. Just imagine what the relatives in Alberta are thinking??
